

Meaningful Prosperity: Living with Intention
4. Thank-You Letter From Your Future Self

Picture your future self, any number of years from now. Write yourself a thank-you letter from them. Describe what you think they'll be grateful you are doing now and will do in upcoming years.

Meaningful Prosperity: Living with Intention 5. Rocks and Sand

We've all heard the parable about putting rocks in our jar before the sand, fitting the small stuff in around what is most important.

The jar below represents your life's elements, prioritized at your ideal. What are your rocks – the three most important elements that deserve your time, energy, and money? Your smaller stones? Your pebbles?

Label them below.

Meaningful Prosperity: Living with Intention
6. A Role Model

Think of someone you admire. Anyone. They don't have to be perfect, just someone who inspires something in you.

1. Write their name or add their picture above the line.
2. In the left column, describe their traits that you are living today.
3. In the right column, describe their traits that you aspire toward.

Role Model

As I Live Today	As I Aspire Toward